Exciting new Colifast ALARM sales

The Catalan water company ATLL's WTP in Barcelona just bought a Colifast ALARM after having tested the demo unit in their laboratory over a few months. We congratulate our distributor EMS Sistemas with the first sale ever of a Colifast ALARM in Southern Europe – may there be many more!

A brand new application request popped up from Turkey: A well-known car manufacturer requested a fully automated system to monitor waste water generated at the factory. After getting the information they needed, they decided to acquire a Colifast ALARM which is now installed at the factory. This will be a very exciting application to follow!

Climate changes, extreme weather and impact on water quality – presented at three different events

Climate changes and extreme weather is a very hot topic these days. Colifast AS and NIVA had a research project funded by the Norwegian Research Council a few years ago. The project aimed to investigate how extreme weather may affect water quality in a lake in Southern Norway. The results pointed to that heavier rainfall and milder winters can give pathogenic bacteria easier access to the surface drinking water sources.

The findings are very interesting and the presentations has got very good feedback. Please contact us if you are interested in learning more about the project and the results.

Colifast celebrated its first 25 years!

In 2017 Colifast celebrated 25 years in the market for rapid detection of indicator bacteria in water and food. There have been ups and downs along the road, but Colifast has proven to be a stayer! The products and technology are rock bottom solid and deliver year after year. Repeat customers are the best evidence of the high quality of the products and service Colifast offers. We look forward to the next 25 years!

Celebrating our first 25 years in style!
